

I am an avid skier, and have skied mountains all over the world! This winter, I am looking to try skiing somewhere that I have never heard of, and it is just going to be good based on the conditions of the snow. This website is going to help me find somewhere that will have a lot of snow for the times I am looking to travel.

I made an account on the website and now am going to do my search. I input my travel dates, and I am planning on going for Presidents Weekend because I have work off, so I put in February 16 - 21, then for the weather, I am just going to put in snow, with temperatures below 45 degrees. I click search and wow! There are so many options for places I could go. Some of these places are sadly not for skiing and just places where there will be snow, but there are a few places in here that are ski destinations. I wish I could filter it to just be ski destinations, but that is okay. I have been to a lot of the ski destinations listed, but there are also a lot I have not even heard of yet! I am so excited! It is nice to see the flight prices for my travel, but I love skiing so much that the price does not even matter to me. I am going to just write down a few names that seem interesting to me, and do some further searches to make sure that they are ski destinations, and to find the exact place I want to go! I love how this website has given me the ability to find new places to ski that I have not heard of before. Even though I was not able to specify that I want to go somewhere where there are mountains, I was still able to easily find a new ski destination for myself with just some extra google searches after I looked through my search on this website.